The Final Rejection of August 23, 2007 is withdrawn.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Burns et al in view of Kurokami et al.

Burns et al show a ground fault sensing apparatus wherein differential current in a two wire supply is sensed with a magnetic core 30 having a Hall sensor 32 located in a gap of the core 30. The abstract and other locations of Burns et al indicate that AC or DC signals may be sensed. Burns et al do not indicate that their device can be used with a fuel cell. Kurokami et al teach that a ground fault detector may be used with any of plural power source types including an inverter, a battery, a solar power generation apparatus or a fuel cell. See column 2 lines 24-30 of Kurokami et al. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have used the apparatus of Burns et al to sense ground fault conditions in a fuel cell powered system because such is suggested by Kurokami et al. It is further considered obvious by the Examiner, with or without the teaching of Kurokami et al, to have used the apparatus of Burns et al to sense ground faults in a system regardless of the kind of power source used. The function of Burns et al is the same when using a fuel cell as a power source as it would be using a lead acid battery as a power source. Amplifiers as claimed in claims 2 and 12 can be used anywhere it is desired to change the level of a signal. Figure 5 of Burns et al shows a toroid core 78.
